第 41 至 43 題為題組

It's quite awkward if you forget the name of an acquaintance on a social occasion. The following are some ways that might help you out. The easiest is, of course, to turn to a mutual friend. If none are available, you can gather information by asking questions, like "It's been too long. When was the last time we saw each other?" If you can learn where you first met the person, you might remember their name. Also, you can ask the other person to help you by updating their contact information on your phone. After you hand them your smartphone, you'll get the name you want. If everything above fails, be honest and politely admit you have forgotten the person's name. After all, nobody is perfect!

41. What is the main idea of this article?

- (A) Criticizing those forgetting the name of an acquaintance. (B) Helping those who suffer from the loss of memory.
 (C) Offering some useful advice in an embarrassing situation. (D) Providing some tips for those who have no friends.

42. According to the article, which of the following suggestions are NOT mentioned if you happen to forget the name of an acquaintance on a social occasion?

- (A) Turn to a mutual friend. (B) Update their contact information on your phone.
 (C) Recall where you first met the person. (D) Introduce yourself again.

43. From the last sentence, we can infer that the tone of the author is _____.

- (A) Indifferent. (B) Positive.
 (C) Angry. (D) Warning.

第 44 至 46 題為題組

At the beginning of Shakespeare in Love, young William Shakespeare has a writer's handicap. He is struggling to write a word of the play he is working on, Romeo and Ethel. To make matters worse, he needs money. And the woman he thought he was in love with has been seeing someone else.

The moment he sees Viola de Lesseps, a nobleman's daughter, he loves her at first sight. She is far above him socially. However, Mr. Shakespeare is already a hero to her because she loves the theater. In those days, women were not allowed to act on the stage. All female roles were played by boys. Viola takes a great risk and dresses as a boy called Thomas to win a part in the play of Romeo and Ethel that Shakespeare is writing.

William Shakespeare is not only in love, but he is also inspired. After each meeting with Viola, he writes furiously. Viola asks him if his play will "end well for the lovers"; William replies, "In heaven, perhaps.... A broad river divides my lovers—family, duty, fate—as unchangeable as nature." Thus, Romeo and Ethel becomes Romeo and Juliet.

44. Based on the descriptions of Viola in the article, what might Viola be most interested in?
(A) Writing poems. (B) Writing plays. (C) Wearing men's suits. (D) Acting.
45. Which of the following statements about William Shakespeare is FALSE?
(A) He lacks money when writing his play. (B) He is talented in writing plays without difficulties.
(C) He lays his love on Viola at first sight. (D) He writes Romeo and Ethel.
46. According to the article, we can infer from William's reply to Viola in the third paragraph that the lovers will _____.
(A) lead a happy life together. (B) meet each other in heaven.
(C) be separated. (D) be reconciled with each other.

第 47 至 50 題為題組

Food poisoning is caused by bacteria, or in some cases viruses, contaminating the food we eat. While we tend to blame the last thing we ate it may have been something we ate several days ago. Food isn't sterile; it comes from animals or grows in soil. If we are healthy adults, our immune systems can deal with small numbers of bacteria and viruses but at higher levels they can make us quite sick. Vulnerable people such as pregnant women, the elderly or people with poor immune systems can get very ill or even die from food poisoning.

Food poisoning is more frequently caused by bacteria. Bacteria like to grow in the 'temperature danger zone' between 5°C and 60°C. Their numbers can double and redouble and in a few hours they can reach dangerous levels. Some viruses that cause foodborne disease include Hepatitis A, Norwalk virus, Norovirus, Rotavirus and some of the Caliciviruses. Viruses don't grow in food, and one particle may be enough to make you sick. Consequently, food poisoning is caused by not only bacteria, but viruses.

(Adapted from: Food Safety Information Council)

47. What is the best title for this passage?
(A) The Function of Bacteria and Viruses (B) The Cause of Food Poisoning
(C) Be Cautious about Bacteria and Viruses (D) The Prevention of Food Poisoning
48. Which of the following words has the closest meaning to the word "vulnerable"?
(A) weak (B) sick (C) dying (D) obese
49. Where can you find this article?
(A) Fashion magazine (B) Style at Home (C) Life and Health (D) The Economist
50. According to the article, which of the following descriptions is TRUE?
(A) Viruses can grow in food, and one particle may be enough to make you sick.
(B) Healthy adults can deal with small numbers of viruses and bacteria by the immune system.
(C) Both bacteria and viruses can survive in the 'temperature danger zone' between 5°C and 60°C.
(D) The majority of food poisoning is less frequently caused by bacteria.
