Les Miserables, published in 1862, is a novel by French novelist Victor Hugo. The novel is about Jean Valjean, a man who steals a loaf of bread because his family is too poor to buy food. As punishment for his crime, he spends nineteen years in prison. Even after he is released, he is still identified as an ex-convict. As a result, he still cannot receive fair treatment as others.

Hugo wrote his novel during a period of revolution. Since the 1780s, people in France had been very concerned about justice and government. During the French Revolution, which started in 1789, people killed the king and tried to establish a better kind of government. Unfortunately, it did not work.

The novel shows how each new government continued to treat poor people cruelly. Many people want to lead a carefree and happy life. People believe that being happy is simply a mental state or condition. However, there is now scientific evidence that physical exercise can make an important contribution to happier living.

Studies have revealed that when people do exercise, endorphins would be released from the body, which make the brain relax. During exercise, the body also burns another chemical called cortisol, which is produced when being under stress. It can damage the body and make a person feel negative. The production of endorphins and the destruction of cortisol in the body have beneficial mental effects. After taking exercise like running or swimming, people may feel physically tired but mentally relaxed at the same time. Regular exercise can affect people's attitude. Also, reduce the amount of sugar sweetened drinks and salt in your child's diet. If you are unsure about how to select and prepare a variety of foods for your family, consult a registered dietitian for nutrition counseling.

Other approaches parents can take to develop healthy eating habits in their children include: Guide your family's choices rather than dictate foods. Make a wide variety of healthful foods available at home. This practice will help your children learn how to make healthy food choices. Discourage eating meals or snacks while watching TV.
