When people think of surfing, Wales doesn't usually come to mind to most. However, entrepreneur Martin Ainscough has built a massive water park51 the first commercial artificial surfing lake in a small Welsh community at the cost of a whopping NT$600 million. With a length of 300 meters and a width of 113 meters, the lake generates waves at a 52 of one per minute. The technology used to 53 these waves is known as hydrodynamic wave foil. The size of the waves54 from under one meter for beginners to almost two meters for more experienced surfers. In addition to catering to surfers, the water park, called Surf Snowdonia, has swimming pools as well as various55 water sport venues. One great thing about Surf Snowdonia is that swimmers and surfers don't have to worry about being56 by a shark.
One person who might not want to visit Surf Snowdonia is surfer Mike Coots, since he has had a life-threatening encounter with a tiger shark. Nearly two decades ago, when Coots was 17, he was attacked by a shark that appeared out of and sank its razor-sharp teeth into his right leg while he was bodyboarding.
Fortunately, he survived the accident, thanks to his friend and58 who helped him onto the back of a pickup truck. Despite being rushed to the hospital at speeds exceeding 160 kilometers an hour, Coots had to have his leg 59 at the calf. After 60 accepting his fate and setting about the task of the long painful procedures of rehabilitation, Coots returned to surfing. He also now tirelessly campaigns to prevent the slaughter

The 1967 disappearance of American Jim Thompson remains a mystery and a challenge to historians trying to make sense of it. That year, on a tour of Malaysia, Thompson took a walk in the jungle from which he never returned. ___61___

While Thompson has never been seen since, his spirit lives on at his Thai home. ____62___ It was the American, who came to love Thai culture, that saved the silk-making business of that country and transformed it into a world-class industry. Before World War II, the craft was an old, famous, and successful tradition in Thailand. ____63___ The escalation of the Second World War in Europe made Thompson decide to volunteer in the US Army. ____64___ Putting all his energy and cleverness into reviving the beautiful, artistic craft of Thai silk-making, Thompson managed to save it during his 25-year-long stay in Thailand. ____65___ This included the appearance of Thai silk costumes on Broadway in the 1960s. Thus, the story of Thompson's life shows how one's work as a true labor of love can have a major impact on the world.

- (A) His residence is now a major tourist attraction and considered the most celebrated social center of Bangkok, Thailand's capital city.
- (B) He founded Jim Thompson's Silk Company, helping the popularity of Thai silk to spread all over the planet.
- (C) Some think he just disappeared because he fulfilled his mission in life, but no one really knows what happened to this famous silk merchant.
- (D) Among his assignments during the time of his military service, in addition to doing a tour of duty in Italy and France, was a journey to Asia.
- (E) Malaysia, where Christians make up nine percent of the population, is one of the few countries without diplomatic ties with the Vatican.
- (AB) After the war, however, the invention of synthetic fabric seriously hurt the market for silk, and the Thai silk industry was on the verge of extinction.

When it comes to traveling, bigger is not always better. Those who want to be convinced of that fact need only take a look at the little European country of Slovenia. The nation is just over half the size of Taiwan and has a population of only two million. Despite its smallness, Slovenia has a lot to offer tourists. Two of the country's natural wonders are Lake Bled and Postojna Cave, which are separated from each other by less than an hour's drive. Scenic Lake Bled, with its surrounding hills and forests, is a perfect place to unwind. Visitors to the area can also enjoy Bled Castle, which is perched on a tall hill overlooking the lake. The castle's architecture is interesting, complete with a drawbridge and moat. The museum and exhibition rooms inside the building are especially attractive to history buffs eager to see what life was like in Medieval Europe. Meanwhile, Postojna Cave stretches for 24 kilometers, five kilometers of which are open to the public. So large is the cave that in some parts, a concert hall was constructed inside, which can entertain as many as 10,000 people at symphony orchestra performances.

Making a triangle with Postojna Cave and Lake Bled is the capital, Ljubljana. Much of the city is like an outdoor museum with architecture that has been preserved for centuries. Ljubljana's counterparts, such as London, Paris, and Rome, may be bigger, but the Slovenian capital has a clean, convenient, and calming environment. In addition to the medieval treasure called Ljubljana Castle, the twin-towered Ljubljana Cathedral, the Town Hall, and the Urbanc House are other must-see attractions. All in all, Slovenia is a beautiful and affordable destination that people should put on their bucket lists.

- 66. Which of following is true?
 - (A) People can hear musical performances in Postojna Cave.
 - (B) Slovenia is about twice the size of Taiwan.
 - (C) It takes several hours to drive from Lake Bled to Postojna Cave.
 - (D) People can see 24 kilometers of Postojna Cave.
- 67. According to the reading, what is the ideal thing to do at Lake Bled?
 - (A) Take a walk in the scenic hills.

(B) Go swimming in the lake.

(C) Take time to relax.

- (D) Drive or ride a bike around the lake.
- 68. Who does the writer say would be most interested in Bled Castle's museum?
 - (A) Tourists from Europe.

- (B) People who are quite interested in history.
- (C) People who enjoy studying architecture.
- (D) Men and women who like castles.
- 69. Why are London, Paris and Rome "counterparts" of Ljubljana?
 - (A) They are all capitals of European cities.
- (B) They are all large cities.

(C) They all have castles.

- (D) They are all foreign cities.
- 70. What does the last line of the reading mean?
 - (A) Only people who can afford it should travel to Slovenia.
 - (B) If you go to Slovenia, you should see all of the country.
 - (C) Slovenia is beautiful but expensive to visit.
 - (D) People must visit Slovenia once in lifetime.
