VI. Reading Comprehension 閱讀測驗 (13%)*(1) (5% @1%)

Maintaining a healthy diet can be challenging, especially when supposedly “healthy” foods aren’t as good as we think. For example, healthy though salad looks, it can be unhealthy when served with dressings full of sugar and sodium. Salads with large amounts of cheese, bacon, or fried chicken are just as unhealthy as many other dishes. Sandwiches can be tricky, too. Often, they include high-calorie sauces and sodium-packed meat. Besides, some so-called whole wheat breads are made with processed flour, containing little nutrition. Fruit juice, while packed with vitamins and minerals, is commonly high in calories and sugar. If you really want a juice, choose a type with reduced sugar and high pulp content. Finally, diet sodas that are low calorie and low sugar actually contain artificial sweeteners, which can increase your appetite. (5-p. 14-17)

78. What is the passage mainly about?
(A) Incredibly healthy foods. (B) Delicious and healthy foods.
(C) Unhealthy healthy foods. (D) Natural and processed foods.
79. What is NOT mentioned as a cause for food being unhealthy?
(A) Calories. (B) Sodium. (C) Sugar. (D) Artificial colors.
80. Why are sandwiches sometimes bad for you?
(A) They force you to eat more. (B) The bread is not healthy.
(C) There is often a lot of sugar in them. (D) They contain too much butter.
81. What is the problem with fruit juice?
(A) It is high in sugar. (B) It is actually not fresh. (C) It is low in vitamins. (D) It is often too expensive.
82. Why isn’t it a good idea to drink diet sodas?
(A) They contain a lot of real sugar. (B) You may want to eat more.
(C) They have high calorie content. (D) You may lose your appetite.

(2) (8% @2%)

We live in a world filled with all the colors of the rainbow. However, some people are denied the pleasure of seeing them because they are totally color-blind. With regular color blindness, people are unable to tell certain colors apart, but totally color-blind people can see only shades of black, white, and gray.

This condition is relatively rare, affecting around one in every 40,000 people. Those who are affected tend to be extremely sensitive to bright light, so they usually wear sunglasses whenever they go outside. Their everyday lives are also made difficult by their generally poor vision, especially when it comes to cooking because they can not tell whether the meat is cooked or not.

Being totally color-blind is not all doom and gloom, however. For a start, sufferers have superior night vision, as they are more used to dim light from wearing sunglasses so often. Also, totally color-blind people are likely to have a good memory. This is because, unable to rely on their eyes, they have a greater need to remember things when taught for the first time. In addition, to compensate for their inferior vision, their other senses, like hearing and smell, may be sharper. And these highly developed senses likely lead them to be keen observers of their surroundings.

So although totally color-blind people lack the ability to see color as we know it, their world can still be “colorful” in its own special way.

83. Total color blindness refers to the condition of not being able to see _____.
(A) any colors (B) bright colors
(C) the difference between certain colors (D) colors other than black, white, and gray
84. What would be a challenge for totally color-blind people?
(A) Cooking a steak. (B) Buying sunglasses. (C) Walking at night. (D) Wearing contact lenses.
85. What is paragraph 3 mainly about?
(A) What causes total color blindness? (B) How total color blindness affects people’s lives.
(C) Current treatments for total color blindness. (D) The positive side of total color blindness.
86. What might be TRUE about totally color-blind people?
(A) They get used to new environments quite easily. (B) They are good at detecting environmental changes.
(C) They memorize things less quickly than others. (D) They have extremely poor night vision.
