第 61 至 62 題為題組

The NBA star James Harden was born of a poor family. He grew up in Compton, Los Angeles, one of the most dangerous places in America. While his father was in jail for most of his childhood, his mother encouraged him to play basketball to keep him out of trouble. Despite his asthma, Harden worked hard and achieved his goal in 2009, when he entered the NBA. He's now with the Houston Rockets and in his ninth year in the NBA. On the court, he's an excellent shooter. In the 2017-2018 season, he led the league in scoring and was named an NBA All-Star for the sixth season in a row. Harden also helped his team finish with the best record in the league and earned the MVP award for his individual play this season.

61. Which did Harden NOT do in the 2017-2018 season?

- (A) Earn the NBA MVP award.
- (B) Score the most in the league.
- (C) Become an All-Star for the first time.
- (D) Help the Rockets achieve the best record.

62. Which of the following is true about Harden?

- (A) His asthma once stopped him from playing basketball.
- (B) His father has always been his role model.

(C) He has been in the NBA for more than a decade.

(D) He grew up in a dangerous neighborhood.

第 63 至 64 題為題組

Ketchup has a long and rich history. In the 1860s, demand for tomato ketchup was so high that factories couldn't find enough fresh tomatoes to make the sauce. They started using rotten ones instead. Harmful chemicals like coal tar were also added to give the sauce its red color and help preserve it. Many people complained about these unsafe practices. This caused American businessman Henry J. Heinz to create his own ketchup. Only fresh tomatoes were used, and a large amount of vinegar was added as a natural preservative. Heinz started selling his ketchup in 1876. He put them in clear bottles, in this way customers could see the sauce was safe. It proved to be very popular, and people started connecting the food item with the bottle and the name Heinz.

63. What is NOT true about the ketchup factories in the 1860s?

- (A) They made the sauce red with added chemicals.
- (B) They added preservatives that were not natural.
- (C) They used tomatoes that had already gone bad.
- (D) They used safe methods to make the sauce.

64. What was the result of Heinz's practices?

- (A) Customers trusted his product.
- (B) Fewer people bought his ketchup.
- (C) No one could remember his name.
- (D) Demand for empty clear bottles went up.

第 65 至 67 題為題組

Handwriting is on the decline, and many people are concerned that it would be lost. They feel it's an important tradition and gives communication a personal touch. Also, writing by hand has more benefits for our brains than typing. For one, the former requires skilled coordination, while the latter only uses simple movements. For another, it gives students a better grasp of what they're learning when they take notes on paper. Even so, some people support the move away from handwriting. They believe it's no longer a useful skill, as almost everything today can be done electronically. In addition, typing is faster than handwriting, which gives people more time to think about things like word choice and sentence structure. For them, there's no need to write by hand. After all, as technology advances, it's natural for things to change.

65. How do people feel about handwriting?

- (A) Everyone thinks it's no longer a useful skill.
 (B) Few feel it's important or on the decline.
 (C) A good number fear it's going to disappear.
 (D) No one worries that it would be lost.

66. Why are some people moving away from handwriting?

- (A) It's natural for them to get tired of traditional things.
 (B) It's very likely to happen with improving technology.
 (C) They believe it stops their brains from working faster.
 (D) They want to add a personal touch to their communication.

67. What do we learn from the article?

- (A) Handwriting has become a new trend again.
 (B) Typing requires a lot more skills than handwriting.
 (C) As technology changes, so do people's habits.
 (D) Typing will soon become a thing of the past as well.
