Making a difference in the world is on my bucket list. That's why I joined the Peace Corps as a volunteer teacher after college. With a group of other fresh graduates, I 16 my journey.

I was assigned to Namibia, and my job there was to train the local teachers to teach in English as English became the official language after Namibia gained independence 17 South Africa. Teachers should have been able to teach in English, but many lacked the skills to do so. What's worse, schools and classrooms were bare and poorly constructed. And materials that students needed for their education were in short supply. The lives of the students were tough, too. They had so many daily chores to do, including cooking meals and 18 their younger siblings.

It took me a while to get accustomed to life in Namibia. Before I went there, I couldn't imagine life without air-conditioning 19 the temperatures were often over 38 Celsius! Even though the living conditions in Namibia were not as good as what I had in the U.S., I was extremely grateful that I was sent there. 20, I would not have had the opportunity to experience the beauty and wonder of this country. Would you like to get a job with a salary of 150,000 Australian dollars for six months? Better yet, you can live on a tropical island, soak up the sun, and swim with the fishes. Unbelievable 36 it may sound, it is what Ben Southall did when he won the “Best Job in the Word” contest in 2009. Started by Tourism Queensland, the contest was to find an island caretaker for the Hamilton Island in the Great Barrier Reef. Over 34,000 people 37 the position and they were asked to present a 60-second video expressing 38 they were the best candidate for the job. Some applicants mentioned their work experience; others showed their bizarre side. Southall chose to show his fun and adventurous side.

Through careful screening, only sixteen competitors entered the final stage. Southall impressed the judges with his creativity, passion, an outgoing personality and communication skills, and came out on top. He became a celebrity overnight. Being an island caretaker, he had a tight schedule and even 39 dangerous situations. For example, he was once stung by a poisonous jellyfish. 40, he received timely treatment and made a full recovery.

A torrential rain was beating down. Thin plastic ponchos barely prevented the people in the back of a truck from getting soaked. Suddenly, there was movement. A huge animal on all fours appeared out of nowhere, followed by another and another. Lions were circling the truck! Suddenly, one lunged forward, jaws wide open.

Sound like a scary movie? Maybe! But it was our true experience of a real tour provided at Taiwan's one-of-a-kind safari and theme park, Leofoo Village. Located about an hour and a half from Taipei by bus, Leofoo Village is more than a typical theme park. Its vast grounds includes a water park and zoo, rides, shows, and restaurants plus a hotel complex. And the hotel boasts an inner courtyard that houses giraffes, zebras, flamingos, lemurs, and more! They even offer special tours where visitors can take part in the animal feedings. That's how we found ourselves seated in the back of that truck, surrounded by a sturdy metal cage. The truck took us through three different enclosures; one for tigers, one for bears and one for lions. It was amazing to get so close to such majestic animals. Our guide, supplied with snacks for the beasts, soon had them eating from her hand. The American black bear was very relaxed and calm while eating. But in the tiger and lion enclosures, the big cats would stand on their hind legs and put their paws right against the bars looking for food.

It was a unique encounter we will never forget.

49. What does the first paragraph of this article try to do?

- (A) Give you details about how to book a tour.
- (B) Teach you how to feed wild animals.
- (C) Encourage you to be a safer driver.
- (D) Help you picture something in your mind.

50. Based on the reading, what is not found at Leofoo Village?

- (A) African animals.
- (B) Accommodation.
- (C) An aquarium.
- (D) Places to eat.

51. Where might you read this article?

- (A) On a travel blog.
- (B) In a weather report.
- (C) In a self-help book.
- (D) On a job posting.

52~53 為題組

The Harlem Globetrotters have trotted all over the globe since 1926. They love to entertain crowds with their fancy moves and basketball tricks. As a matter of fact, they are the ones who made the flying slam dunk so popular. But despite their superstar status, this special team was unable to play against professional NBA teams because all their players were black. Back in 1926, there were laws in America that kept blacks and whites separated. However, in 1946 the NBA began and soon became open to players of all colors. In fact, one of the first black players drafted into the NBA was a former Globetrotter.

Professional NBA players are known all over the world, but many viewers also enjoy watching NCAA college basketball. Student players don't receive a salary, so some fans feel that NCAA college basketball is more sincere.

Each year, millions of people watch "March Madness", a famous NCAA basketball tournament. In this tournament, 68 men's and 64 women's teams compete to see who is number one. People always think the top ranked team will come out on top. But every year it's the team who plays with the most passion that's the champion.

52. Why couldn't the Globetrotters originally play professional basketball?

- (A) Because they weren't very good players.
- (B) Because they did not entertain the crowds.
- (C) Because their coach would not let them.
- (D) Because their race would not let them.

53. According to the article, what is special about college basketball?

- (A) It's a fun college activity.
- (B) NCAA is a famous tournament.
- (C) The players receive scholarships.
- (D) The athletes don't get paid.

54~55 為題組

Dr. Denis "Miracle" Mukwege is a great example of a real-life hero. This award-winning gynecologist has been standing against injustice against Congolese women for 20 years. He provides medical care for more than 3,500 patients a year at his Panzi hospital. The hospital was first set up in 1998. During the Second Congo War, the hospital was destroyed, but Mukwege rebuilt it the following year!

答案卷

This wasn't the only scary experience Mukwege faced. In 2012 someone attempted to assassinate him and briefly held his daughters hostage. Mukwege and his family found safety by escaping to Europe for a while. But even this didn't stop Mukwege. Soon after, he returned to his hospital and continued his work, this time under the protection of UN peacekeepers.

It should be quite apparent why the committee for the 2018 Nobel Peace Prize chose to give the award to Mukwege. He has not become tired of serving those in need even though it comes at great personal risk. Both Dr. Mukwege and Nadia Murad, the recipients of the 2018 Peace Prize, continue to bravely push forward towards ending violence against women.

54. What does the article imply about Dr. Mukwege?

- (A) He has devoted his life to serving people.
- (B) He has determined to earn a Nobel Prize.
- (C) He has dedicated his knowledge to educating Congolese women.
- (D) He has decided to build hospitals for people.

55. What happened to Dr. Mukwege after he and his family escaped to Europe for safety?

- (A) He opened hospitals there and made a fortune.
- (B) He applied for the Nobel Peace Prize.
- (C) He sent soldiers to make things right.
- (D) He continued helping people in his homeland.
