(I) Ghosts are thought to wander the earth because they are lost between the world of the living and the dead. Many cultures believe that during certain times of the year, the gates between the two worlds are open for ghosts to visit the living. It is a time to keep off bad spirits and to comfort the ghosts. Some Europeans still leave food and drinks by open doors and windows to invite spirits into their home around Halloween time. Offering food is a common practice when respecting the dead. During the "Day of the Dead", Mexicans set about decorating tombs with bright flowers and freshly baked bread.

It is natural to fear ghosts; after all, they are said to have special powers. Some believe that ghosts are hungry for living substances, in particular, the spirits of children. For their own good, many people avoid places or activities that ghosts may come to. By celebrating the dead, ghosts are thought to be satisfied and then return to their world, leaving the living peace.

56. The passage is about how people _____.
    (A) decorate tombs   (B) avoid ghosts   (C) comfort the living   (D) get food
57. Some cultures believe that during certain times of the year, ghosts _____.
    (A) pretend that they are people   (B) come to the world of the living
    (C) come to decorate their tombs   (D) gather to meet other ghosts
58. What is common practice of different cultures when ghosts come to our world?
    (A) Leave home for days   (B) Protect children from ghosts
    (C) Ask the ghosts for gifts   (D) Offer food to ghosts
59. What does "set about" mean in line 5?
    (A) start   (B) stop   (C) be ready   (D) finish

(II) For everyday purpose, we rely partially on our memories and partially on our small helpers: agendas, notebooks, calendars, etc. to remember what we have to do. One of these valuable helpers, Post-it, the self sticking notes came as a result of a failure and some scrap paper. 3M researcher Art Fry enjoyed singing in church, but he could not keep the little pieces of paper he used to mark his favorite songs in the same place. However, Fry was a creative and resourceful person. He remembered there was a kind of glue, invented by another 3M scientist, which was rejected because it could not hold things together for a long time. Fry thought a "temporarily permanent" bookmark might be the ideal use of the glue. He suggested small pieces of paper in "canary yellow" color, which could be easily seen. Eventually, he introduced the product by giving free samples to customers, but demand for Post-it notes grew quickly.

Today Post-it is one of the five top-selling office products in the United States. They are best sellers worldwide. The latest development has been crossing a Post-it note with a computer, called Post-it Software Notes. It is a digital version of the yellow notes, and it is perfect for quick reminders on your computer desktop, so you will never miss a meeting, event or thought. You can also use it to exchange notes with your friends on the Internet. This little aid for communication came a long way from the scrap papers and rejected glue.

60. What is the main idea for this passage?
    (A) Where there is a will, there is a way.   (B) Failure is the mother of success.
    (C) The invention and growth of Post-it notes.   (D) Post-it notes work well.
61. In line 4, the word "resourceful" means _____.
    (A) offering a lot of methods to help others   (B) good at finding ways of dealing with practical problems
    (C) a place full of minerals or natural energy to use   (D) providing different kinds of resources for people to choose from
62. Art Fry invented the Post-it notes because _____.
    (A) he enjoyed singing in church   (B) he wanted to mark his favorite songs
    (C) he wanted to become and outstanding researcher   (D) he enjoyed taking advantage of rejected material
63. The Post-it Software Notes on your computer _____.
    (A) are a digital version made of rejected glue   (B) are one of the five top-selling office products
    (C) were invented by 3 researchers in America   (D) are derived from Art Fry's amazing idea

Parts of Tiangong-1 conveniently splashed down not far from the world's 'spacecraft cemetery'

NOT far from Australia is the world's "spacecraft cemetery" known as Point Nemo — considered the most remote place on Earth.

CHINA'S out-of-control space station plummeted back to Earth this morning and, as it turns out, it landed not too far from a famous resting place for old satellites and spacecraft.

Officials confirmed this morning that the defunct space station Tiangong-1 mostly burned up upon re-entry into Earth's atmosphere and landed in the South Pacific at about 10.16am AEST.

At about 2400km from any spot of land, it's "pretty much the farthest place from any human civilization you can find," according to NASA and that's precisely why space agencies around the world like to use it as a dumping ground for spacecraft that once orbited above us.

Though not all spacecraft end up in a watery grave in the vast stretch of the South Pacific Ocean. Many smaller satellites don't make it because the heat from the friction of the air burns up the satellite as it falls towards Earth at thousands of kilometers an hour.
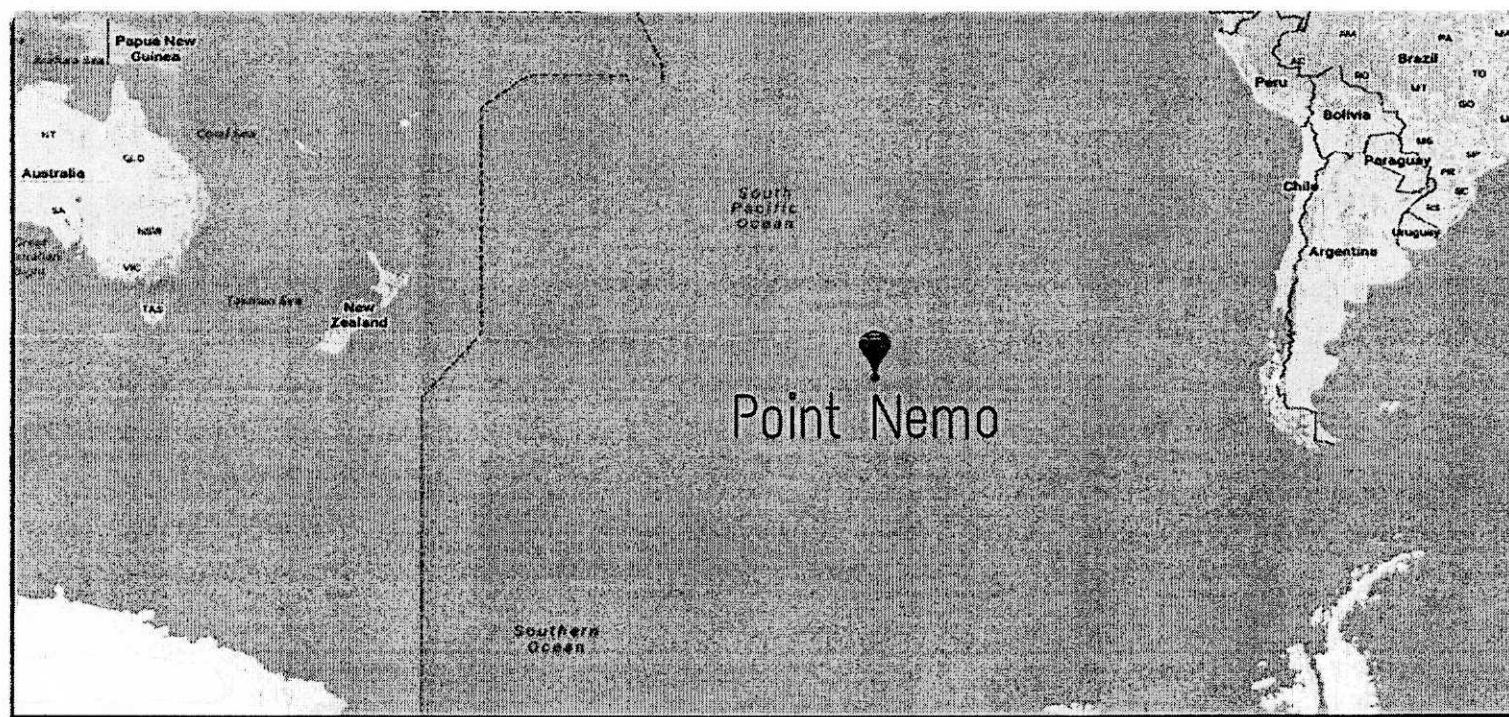

64. What is Tiangong-1?
65. What is Point Nemo a resting place for?
66. What ocean is Point Nemo in?
67. Why didn't many of the smaller satellites end up in the graveyard?

以下部分請用藍或黑筆在答案卷上作答。用鉛筆者，一律不計分。
